THREE IMPORTANT SAFETY CLASSES ESSENTIAL TO YOUR BUSINESS

FALL PROTECTION

Fall Prevention and Protection training is required by OSHA for employees prior to working on and around elevated surfaces. An effective program ensures your staff is adequately trained to identify and control fall hazards and can understand when fall protection is required in the workplace. Components of this course include fall protection systems, guarding against fall hazards and rescue procedures.

CONFINED SPACE

The Confined Spaces course focuses on the basics for recognizing and evaluating the health and safety hazards associated with confined space work. Attendees will learn what classifies spaces as permit-required and the precautions that must be taken before such a space is entered, including entry and exit, ventilation, rescue procedures and more.

LADDER SAFETY

More than 164,000 American workers are hurt and 300 deaths occur every year due to ladder accidents. Avoid lost productivity and expensive workers' compensation claims by proactively providing your team with ladder safety training. This course is about more than three points of contact and overreaching. It will provide you and your team the dos and don'ts of ladder usage.
